LEGION ACQUIRES WOLF RESIDENCE

Pay Sixty Three Hundred Dollars For Dwelling on York Street.

GET POSSESSION IN APRIL

Quarters For Former Service Men And The Newly Organized Woman's Auxiliary Are Provided.

After deliberating more than two years, during which time no definite action toward the purchase of a permanent home was taken, the building committee of the Albert Lentz Post of the American Legion, with the advice of the membership, on Saturday afternoon entered into an agreement for the purchase of the dwelling occupied by C. M. Wolf, York street, from Charles and George Hemler, for $6,300. J. W. Hartman, E. E. Power and Clarence W. Epley composed the building committee.

The Hemler Brothers, who operate the Plank Garage next door, purchased the house and lot from C. M. Wolf for $8,000 in order to increase the capacity of their garage. However, they wished to dispose of the property and use only the rear end of the lot to expand their business. They offered the Legion first choice on the purchase of the house and 25 feet of ground in the rear.

The house has eleven rooms including a bath and kitchenette and is equipped with electric lights and steam heat. The Legion can claim possession of the property on April 1, but it is understood that Mr. Wolf intends moving out about March 1 and possession can be had at that time. The house will require no improvements either on the interior or exterior and is expected to make an ideal club home for the Albert Lentz Post.

The Legion, which has about $1,700 in its treasury at the present time, deposited a sum sufficient to bind the agreement, Saturday afternoon. Several plans are under way for the paying of the property during the next few years.

The new home will be furnished in so far as possible by donations of furniture and fixtures from the members.

Mr. Wolf, it is said, expects to build on York street in the spring. The exact location, however, was not disclosed.

The Legion, which first organized over two years ago, met in the Majestic Club rooms, on Baltimore street, and from there moved into their present quarters on the third floor of the Stallsmith building, Center Square. During that time the purchase of a permanent home has been before the Legion at almost every meeting but it was only during the past few weeks that any definite action was decided upon.

Several buildings in town were under consideration by the members including the Eagle's Home, and the Jacob Frommeyer properties, Chambersburg street, and the Kimple building and the McSherry properties on Baltimore street. In most of these structures, it was found upon examination that extensive improvements would be required for turning the property into suitable quarters for both the American Legion and the Woman's Auxiliary, now a flourishing addition to the Legion.

TWICE TREED FOX ESCAPES

Hounds And Riders Disappointed at Fairfield in Fox Chase.

Eight hounds and over a score of riders twice treed the grey fox which was liberated at Fairfield Saturday afternoon and finally gave up the chase after the fox retreated to a hole in the hills beyond Fairfield.

A large crowd witnessed the start of the fox chase which started at 2:30 from the base ball grounds on the edge of town. When the fox was released the first time, it ran a short distance and then climbed a tree. It was brought back and started again. This second time it went up the same tree. It was recaptured and brought back and the third time it struck for the hills where it was originally caught.

It ran for over a mile to the top of Brown's Hill, then doubled back to the fields of Peter Musselman with the hounds and a few of the more experienced riders following closely on its tracks. It again redoubled its attempt to elude its captors and struck for the crest of Brown's Hill again where it found a lair and evaded capture.

SCANT WELCOME FOR NEW YEAR

Not a Bell or Whistle Heralded The Birth of 1922. Unlike Other Years.

THREE CHURCH SERVICES

Gayety And Crowds of Former Nights Conspicuously Absent. A Few Guns Fired. Gale its Welcome.

None of the hilarity accompanying former New Year's receptions was evidenced at midnight Saturday when the old year passed into history and 1922 took up the measured beat of time. With the exception of several members of the Albert Lentz American Legion post firing a few rounds of ammunition at the stroke of twelve, no other sound was heard except the cold westerly gale which swept across this section through the night.

Not one church bell was heard and not one whistle blew announcing the birth of another year. The streets were deserted, for the night was cold and the crowds, which usually flocked to the square near the midnight hour to welcome another year were absent this year. The former custom of visiting neighbors to wish them a happy and prosperous new year was revived Saturday night and many house-to-house "watch" parties continued until after 1922 was ushered in.

In former years, the coming of a new year was celebrated with great activity in Gettysburg and elsewhere. Night watchmen at factories blew the whistles on their plants when 12 o'clock told of a new year; and bells on the various churches were rung.

Devotional services in the Methodist, Trinity Reformed and the Asbury M. E. Zion church were well attended. These services started at 10 o'clock and continued until after the midnight hour. These were the only public exercises commemorating the death of the old year and the birth of a new.

An old fashioned "love feast" was celebrated at the Methodist Church, starting at 10 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Harry Daniels, opened the service with devotional exercises and then passed bread and water among the members of the congregation. After the bread and water were distributed the members broke bread with each other and drank out of one

ANOTHER EXTENSION

Bus Line Will Also Go to Northern Virginia.

The Tidewater Lines Inc., which is trying to establish a bus line between Baltimore and Gettysburg is planning a further extension of its service into Northern Virginia.

The freight trucks and passenger busses will be run on a daily reliable schedule to connect with the ferry at McGuires, Westmoreland county, and at Leonardtown, Md., with their present lines.

A party of officials of the Tidewater Lines will make a tour of the Northern Neck in Tidewater busses in the next week or 10 days and will be accompanied by prominent business men and bankers from both Southern Maryland and the Northern Neck.

It is understood that actual plans for installing the service in this section will start very soon.

WILL BE MURDER TRIAL WITNESS

Dr. George Stock Important Figure in Homicide Case Involving Soldier.

PHYSICIAN WAS KILLED

Prominent Specialist at Saranac Lake Killed by Deranged Ex-Service Man. Shot Three Times.

Dr. George A. Stock, son of Mrs. George E. Stock, Baltimore street, and head of the United States Public Health Service at Saranac Lake, New York, will be one of the chief witnesses in the trial of the alleged slayer of Dr. Robert C. Paterson, who on the afternoon of December 24 was shot three times and instantly killed in his office by William Grant R. Johnson, an ex-service man and for two years a patient at Saranac.

Fourteen months ago, according to Dr. Stock, Johnson left Saranac of his own accord. At that time Dr. Stock had dismissed him, advising the New York office that Johnson should be transferred to their rolls and reporting that the man was mentally incompetent and should be placed under proper supervision. It is said that this recommendation was lost in the maze of detail connected with the Public Health Service.

Johnson returned to Saranac Lake of his own accord, and was again placed on the rolls of this department. Dr. Lawrason Brown was his physician up to last August, when, upon Johnson's request, Dr. Stock transferred him to the care of Dr. Paterson.

It is said that while under the care of Dr. Paterson, Johnson received every possible care and attention. Johnson, it is said declared that both Dr. Paterson and Dr. Stock were taking action that was determined to his best interests and it was under this decision that he committed the crime.

According to Dr. Stock, Dr. Paterson had recommended that Johnson be allowed to return home for a visit over Christmas, stating that his mental condition was such that a trip home would probably benefit him, and that his physical condition was sufficiently sound to allow of the trip being made without injury to the patient.

Upon arriving at his home in Canaan, N. Y. advices from that town state, Johnson told his father that he had returned home because he was being persecuted by physicians and others at Saranac Lake. Every evidence, however, tends to show that he was being given all the consideration and kindness possible.

Upon his return to Saranac, he immediately went to the office of Dr. Paterson and fired three shots at the physician, any one of which would have been fatal. Johnson was captured after a gun battle with a police officer during which a bystander jumped on Johnson and pinned him to the ground. He waived a hearing and was held under bail to answer to the charge of first degree murder.

DWELLING BURNED

Home is Completely Destroyed by Fire. Family Away.

The home of A. M. Myers, Carroll township, York county, was completely destroyed by fire Saturday night about 7:30 o'clock, the loss, $1,500, being partly covered by insurance.

At the time of the fire Mr. Myers was in Dillsburg transacting business, and his wife was on a visit to Hanover. The fire was discovered by George Fishel, a neighbor, but before he could summon assistance the fire had gained great headway. A call was sent to Dillsburg for the fire apparatus and the company responded, but could not be of any assistance. There was a strong wind. The house was of frame construction. It was practically destroyed before the apparatus arrived.

All the furniture and personal property of Mr. and Mrs. Myers were also lost.

The supposed cause of the blaze was a defective chimney.

DIVORCE DECREE

At a short session of the Adams county court, this morning, a decree in divorce was granted to Nora Edna Stover, Menallen township, wife of John W. Stover, Philadelphia. H. B. Pearson presided for his first session as associate judge during the morning.

PENROSE OFTEN VISITED HERE

Was at Gettysburg For National Guard Encampment And Many Other Events.

Boies Penrose, senior United States Senator from Pennsylvania, who died at his hotel in Washington, late Saturday night after an illness of several weeks was a frequent visitor to Gettysburg during his lifetime. Several times recently, he passed through here on his way from Washington to the capitol at Harrisburg. His large touring car was painted a bright red.

The last time the late Senator appeared here in a public capacity was on July 4, 1915 when he addressed a large crowd in Center Square. He was campaigning for his fourth reelection to the Senate at that time and was secured by the Patriotic Order Sons of America to address the county convention which was held in Gettysburg.

Senator Penrose was also among the prominent men who attended the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg. He made a speech during the week. The Senator also appeared at a public meeting in New Oxford. He formerly was a regular visitor here at the time of the old National Guard encampment.

CHANCE FOR MORE FEDERAL MONEY

MUCH FOR MAIN HIGHWAYS

Interstate Roads Will Likely be Preferred And This Gives Adams County Good Opportunity.

The fact that Adams County lies on the border of Maryland may give this section some more good roads through the federal aid system for interstate highways.

To relieve the unemployment situation, the Bureau of Public Roads, is prepared to do everything possible to expedite federal-aid road-building projects that can provide work or that will shorten the winter season of inactivity in road building in the northern states. Projects will be approved without delay for the building of roads which the States and the district engineers of the department agree will come within the federal-aid program.

There is available at the present time an unexpended balance from the old Federal-aid appropriation of $53,702,000 in Federal-aid funds yet to be apportioned among the States. In addition, under the law passed November 9 last, the sum of $24,375 became available at once and there also became available January 1, $48,750,000, a total of $126,827,000.

In approving projects under the recent law the department will keep uppermost in mind the provision of the 1921 law which states that "the

PENROSE FUNERAL WILL BE PRIVATE

All Wishes of The Late Senator Will Be Rigidly Observed.

SUCCESSOR IS NOT CHOSEN

Senate Will Take Formal Action on Tuesday And Then Adjourn Out of Respect to Him.

(By Associated Press)

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—Arrangements for the funeral of Senator Penrose were still incomplete today. It was definitely decided, however, that it should be strictly private in accordance with his oft expressed wish. Meanwhile the body of the former Senator encased in a metallic coffin, covered with black cloth, lies in his bachelor home.

No crepe or flowers marked the presence of death in the old fashioned house where from a sick bed he had conferred with national Republican leaders at the Chicago convention which nominated Warren G. Harding for the Presidency.

Every wish of the Senator's for simplicity will be carried out in detail. Governor Sproul said he had not decided upon Senator Penrose's successor.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Members of the Senate Finance Committee, of which the late Senator Penrose was the chairman met informally with the expectation that all the members would go to Philadelphia for the funeral. The expressed wish that the burial be private was communicated to Senator McCumber, the ranking Republican member, and the committee therefore decided to take no action. The plan of the Senate for tomorrow is to meet and adopt resolutions of respect to the memory of the late member and adjourn to the following day.

Harrisburg, January 2.—Governor Sproul today received numerous messages by telegraph and telephone concerning his course in naming a successor to the late Senator Penrose. He declined to make any statement. One batch of messages urged him to resign governorship so that he could be appointed senator by Lieutenant Governor Beideman who would succeed him. Others urged him to name a temporary man and then to be an active candidate in November.

SENATOR PENROSE DIES SUDDENLY

Had Expected to be Back at His Desk on Wednesday of This Week.

GREAT POLITICAL LEADER

Once Chief Lieutenant of Matthew S. Quay, Succeeded Him as Chief of Republican Party.

Washington, January 2.—Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania died here late Saturday night after a brief illness.

Reports from Senator Penrose's apartment at Wardman Park Hotel earlier in the evening indicated that his condition was not so good and physicians were constantly with him. The first notice of his death, which occurred at 10.40 o'clock, was telephoned by a physician from his apartment to the hotel desk.

Senator Penrose, who was 61 years of age, had been complaining for some days, but it was stated repeatedly that his condition was improving and that he would be able to resume his duties in the Senate this week. His recent work as chairman of the Finance Committee in handling tax and tariff legislation was a greater physical hardship, his friends said, than he himself had realized.

Until a few moments before his death Senator Penrose, his physician said, was quite comfortable, although he soon relapsed into unconsciousness and it was realized that his condition was desperate.

Senator Penrose's Career

United States Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, one of the most interesting personalities in the Upper House, which he entered in 1891, as the successor of the late Senator J. Donald Cameron, was one of the wealthiest bachelors in the Senate. An "Old Guard" Republican, he was a member of four important Senate committees, namely, the Finance Committee, of which he was chairman; Banking and Currency, Immigration and Naval Affairs.

Chief lieutenant of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, whose representative he had been in the Pennsylvania Legislature for many years, Penrose did not at first take a very prominent part in Republican party councils at Washington. Until his death, however, he never lost prestige as the leader of his party in his own State. Blunt at all times, but with a reputation that could be trusted in a political deal, Senator Penrose made fast friends and irreconcilable enemies. The latter often charged him with representing the "interests."

Senator Penrose was an early advocate of United States intervention in Mexico and in 1913 introduced a resolution requesting that American troops be sent into the republic south of the Rio Grande. He was an unyielding opponent of the Wilson Administration and particularly of the draft of the Treaty of Peace as submitted to the Senate by President Wilson. He characterized the transfer to Japan of former German concessions in Shantung, China as a "violation of every principle of the League of Nations and a bribe to Japan," and declared it "dispossession of 40,000,000 Chinese of vital rights against her will."

Tariff Chief Hobby

Special work for protective tariffs was Senator Penrose's chief legislative hobby, particularly with reference to revenue legislation, and although his devotion did not result in the passage of a "Penrose bill," he will long be remembered for his activity along these lines. He consistently fought prohibition legislation. He seldom made speeches in the Senate, reading few prepared addresses, and those almost only on fiscal affairs, but he was quick in partisan repartee, and his thrusts won for him the fame of humorist of the upper house, both Democrats and Republicans enjoying his clever sallies.

The Senator's long feud with the Vire political faction in Philadelphia was one of the outstanding features of his career. It showed him as a most resourceful fighter. As Pennsylvania's national committeeman, he was a "power behind the throne" in all Republican conventions, Senate and national councils.

He and Senator Smoot were regarded as having largely forced President Taft's renomination in 1912, when Colonel Roosevelt bitterly assailed Penrose's control of the convention.

Although called the "boss" of Pennsylvania, Penrose obtained large election majorities than ever under the primary system, and held as tight control, spending much of his time between Washington and Harrisburg and Philadelphia. The Senator, although a lawyer, seldom appeared in courts in late years.

Remember the slogan: Prevent forest fires. It pays.

TOO MUCH MONEY TO BE COUNTED

Austrian Merchants Have to Handle Paper by Weight. Country's Deficit.

Vienna, Jan. 2.—Indications are that the beginning of the new year will find the Government facing a deficit of 200,000,000 crowns. It had reached 165,000,000 at the end of October.

The largest single item of the deficit is for subsidized foodstuffs bought outside the country, this alone amounting to 8,000,000,000 crowns. The railways have been run at a loss of 28,000,000,000 crowns.

Another serious item of loss has been on foreign exchange, the Government being forced to sell crowns for foreign values for payments of flour, fats and various other commodities under the food subsidy plan.

Fall Of Crown Unchecked

During the past few months the fall of the crown against standard values has been unchecked and its purchasing value has about reached the vanishing point.

The largest note in circulation in Austria has been 10,000 crowns, but the tremendous volume of circulation has made even that denomination insufficient and an issue of 100,000,000 crown notes is in preparation.

Where 1000 and lesser notes are handled in quantities they are no longer counted but weighed. A table of weights has been worked out and found to be accurate enough for all ordinary purposes when jewelers' scales are used.

Money Presses Kept Busy

In the mind of the average Austrian there seems to linger some fatuous belief that some day and somehow the crown will recover in value, and he gambles on that hope even in such business deals. Meanwhile the presses are turning out nearly 1,000,000,000 a day, the last week in October the issue amounting to 10,000,000,000, and he sees his maximum note of circulation advanced from 10,000 to 100,000-crown denomination and even that worth but little more than the tenner was six months ago.

TO CARE FOR VISITORS

York Will Provide Rest Room for People Who Trade There.

York's comfort station, which has been under consideration for the past two years, now looms up as a definite project, a comprehensive community asset.

Negotiations which have been under way for some time to secure a suitable site have come to a head and the station will be located in the Marshall House, adjacent to the County Court House, provided the county commissioners have expressed themselves favorable to the project, but neither has taken definite action.

The idea is to provide a place for those who go to that city—where they can rest—check any parcels, order parcels delivered when shopping, and also as an object point to meet at any specified time. It is said that the income received from leasing the Marshall House has not been sufficient to warrant the commissioners maintaining it further and the comfort station will make the structure an asset to York county where in former years it was a liability and a discredit to the community.

MOON MOUNTAINEER HELD

Police Watch West Virginia Cars For Bootleggers.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 2.—William Dalbaugh, living on Knobley mountain, near the suburbs of Ridgely, W. Va., opposite Cumberland, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff E. M. Rinkler of Keyser, assisted by three members of the West Virginia State Police on charges of robbery and having an illicit still in his possession. It is asserted that goods stolen from Western Maryland Railway cars was found in Dalbaugh's house and identified by railroad policemen. Dalbaugh was taken to Keyser for a hearing.

The Cumberland police had information that a quantity of bootleg liquor was to have been delivered from Knobley mountain stills and as a result of their investigation, Dalbaugh was arrested. Five police have been detailed the last few days at local bridges to watch cars from West Virginia supposed to be carrying moonshine.

Pearl River (N. Y.) Bank Seeks Information As To Hold-Up.

Pearl River, N. Y., Jan. 2.—A reward of $2,500 for information leading to the arrest of the bandits who killed the paying teller of the First National Bank here last Thursday, and wounded a third man, was offered by the bank.

Two men arrested in Jersey City as suspects are not believed to have any connection with the hold-up, police said.

BORAH DOUBTING PEACEFUL POLICY

Senator Challenges Intent of Combine in The Pacific in Sunday Address.

CAUGHT BY THE WIRELESS

Regards Pact as Weapon of Aggression Against Weak Peoples of The Far East. Speaks in Church.

Washington, Jan. 2.—His words spread broadcast by wireless through adjacent states, Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, speaking at the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant yesterday submitted what he described as a test of whether the Four-Power Pacific Treaty was based upon justice and was therefore a peace alliance, or based upon force and therefore a military alliance. Several thousand amateur and commercial wireless operators within a radius of 200 miles of Washington "listened in" on Senator Borah's address.

The test which Mr. Borah offered was whether supporters of the treaty were willing to accept reservations by which the powers would "agree to restore within one year and thereafter ever to respect the rights, interests, territory and sovereignty of all nations or governments in the region of the Pacific." He added to that the further provision that should the agreement to restore and respect such interests be not observed, the obligations under Article II would be terminated automatically.

Alliance Members Aggressive

The Idaho Senator asserted that the "aggressions in the Far East for the last 50 years have been upon the part of nations, or rather governments which have now signed an alliance to prevent aggression." He charged that it was the members of the "Alliance" and not those nations outside of it who have disregarded the rights of other nations and peoples in the Pacific in recent years.

"The disturbances in the Far East," Mr. Borah continued, "and the things which threaten war arise out of failure of the nations now proposing an alliance to regard the rights of other nations and not out of acts of those who are excluded from the alliance. There would be no Far Eastern questions of a disturbing nature if the members of this proposed alliance had respected the rights of the weak or more peacefully-disposed peoples of the East. Let the alliance specifically provide that the alliance itself and each and all of its members will respect the rights and sovereignty and interests of other peoples and let it be provided that if they do not, the Alliance is dissolved."

I think one of the most interesting and illuminating revelations of modern diplomacy is this proposition that the nations which have been doing all of the aggression, or attacking, should get together and solemnly form an alliance against those nations who have not been guilty of such things. If the nations which are to be members of this alliance would hand back to the nations and peoples the territory, the rights and the liberties which they have taken from them, the war clouds in the Far East would disappear. . . . You would not need an alliance in the Far East if it were not necessary to protect the territory which has been unjustly obtained by members of the alliance."

Strip Off Military Features

Mr. Borah declared it would be a crime—"a crime not only against our own people, but a crime against millions in the Far East"—for the United States to join an alliance in the 10 years of the agreement's life as they have "taken place in the past." He argued that it was wrong to ask the American people to guarantee protection against disturbances and war which "may be brought about or inspired by members of the alliance itself."

RAT WHIPS CAT IN FIGHT

S. C. Feline Expected To Die After Fierce Battle.

Greenville, S. C., Jan. 2.—A rat, the kind that nibbles cheese in the pantry, smashed the precedents of the centuries and whipped a cat in a bloody duel.

A York citizen had trapped the rat and to demonstrate the prowess of his big cat "Dandy" he called his feline and turned the rat loose in his back yard. The cat leaped at him, and the rat leaped back. Followed a gyrating ball of cat and rat, from which issued raucous growls and yug-nacious squeaks.

The cat, dripping with gore from his wounds, tore himself loose from his adversary and attempted to back off, whereupon the rat hurled himself at the retreating foe and drove him from the field in disorder and with shattered morale. The cat is expected to die.

BARON ROSEN IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

Former Ambassador From Russia to This Country Dies in New York.

New York, Jan. 2.—Baron Rosen, former Russian Ambassador to the United States, who recently was knocked down by a taxicab in this city, died Saturday in his suite at the Hotel Neithard. With him at the end was his wife, who hastened to his bedside from Paris on receiving word of the accident.

Baron Rosen, formerly was one of the peace envoys who settled the war between Russia and Japan, and for more than four years had been an exile from his native land.

A one-time world-famous diplomat, he spent the last years of his life in the United States, where he engaged in writing for magazines and newspapers. He came of very old Swedish stock, was born in 1849 and educated at the University of Dorpat and the Imperial Academy of Laws in Petrograd. His ancestors followed the banner of Gustavus Adolphus in the invasion of Muscovy 300 years ago and settled in Lithuania, where the family maintained a vast estate. The Rosens gave Russia many distinguished generals, diplomats and writers.

Baron Rosen, because of his scholarship and desire for world peace, was a trusted adviser of the late Emperor Nicholas. He had been a State Councillor, Chamberlain of the Imperial Court and a knight of the Order of St. Vladimir, St. Ann and St. Stanislaus.

$9,000,000 FOR DRY LAW

House Committee Holds That Sum Will Permit Rigid Enforcement.

Washington, Jan. 2.—An appropriation for the enforcement of prohibition during the next fiscal year amounting to $9,000,000, perhaps slightly more, as compared with the Treasury Department's request for an appropriation of $10,000,000, will be recommended to the House by its Appropriations Committee, it was said by committee members.

An appropriation of approximately $9,000,000, members of the subcommittee framing the Treasury Appropriation bill hold, will permit rigid enforcement of the nation's liquor laws.

The tentative draft of the Treasury Appropriation bill, the first of the annual supply measures that will be considered by Congress, has been completed by the subcommittee and probably will be taken up by the House the latter part of this week. The Appropriations Committee must approve it before it can reach the floor.

While no announcement has been made of totals carried in the bill, marked slashes in the estimated budget expenditures of $169,000,000 for the Treasury Department during the fiscal year beginning next July 1 are understood to have been made.

FRATERNITY HOUSE BURNS

Handsome Building, Valued at $30,000, Destroyed at Charlottesville.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 2.—Fire early Friday night destroyed the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity house at the University of Virginia, together with practically all of its contents.

The 30-odd student members at home for the holiday recess lost all of their belongings. The wind, which had been blowing a gale all day, had fortunately died down or else the adjoining buildings, St. Anthony Hall and Beta Castle, would have caught fire.

The building was decidedly the handsomest fraternity house at the university. It contained 20 rooms and extended from Chancellor street to Madison lane, in the heart of the residential section. It was erected 10 years ago and was valued at $30,000. The front porch, with its large Corinthian columns, faced the athletic field.

The building was handsomely furnished throughout in mahogany. President Alderman belongs to the fraternity and its membership includes many students prominent in the literary and athletic activities of the college.

FRENCHMAN ACCUSED

Charged With Using Official Prestige In Grain Deals.

Paris, Jan. 2.—M. Vilgrain, French wartime Food Administrator, is censured for alleged use of his official prestige to his own advantage in grain deals in a report by a Chamber of Deputies commission.

The commission advises the Government to demand that M. Vilgrain pay into the public treasury 1,200,000 francs, which, it declares, was his share of the commission paid to the firm of Samuel Sandy & Company, of London, for the purchase of Australian wheat for the French Government after he left office.

The commission's report asserts that M. Vilgrain was allied with the British firm while still in his official position.

HE LIED FOR WOMAN

Says She Was Real Slayer And Now She's Gone.

York, Jan. 2.—According to word reaching this city, Harry Baker, a former Yorker, now serving a term in prison at Charlestown, Mass., for the murder of Dwight Chapman, a rich hermit, declares that he had been double-crossed by the woman who actually did the killing and whom he lied to save.

Baker declares that the woman, known as "Baby Doll" and who posed as his wife, beat Chapman to death with a hammer and that her motive was robbery. When Baker was sent to prison the girl (who was supposed to be his wife, according to his story) fell on her knees and cried she would stick to him and would marry him upon his release from the penitentiary. She has now been missing for several months.

PAY FOR NEGLECT

Over eighty-six per cent of the accidents occurring in Pennsylvania industries during 1920 were preventable and 62.6 per cent were due to carelessness, according to figures in the report of the Bureau of Inspection of the State Department of Labor and Industry sent to the printers Friday.

These figures were taken from the factory inspectors' accident reports, and many of them have been the subject of special investigations on orders from Commissioner of Labor and Industry C. B. Connelley. The inspectors also reported 982 violations of the child labor act during the year, and prosecutions were started in 276. Violations of the child labor act were the most numerous of those turned up by the department's inspectors.

FREDERICK HAS FIRE

Considerable Damage Done by Both Fire And Water.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 2.—The Sunday school building of the Methodist Episcopal Church was badly damaged by fire and water Sunday morning early, causing a loss of several thousand dollars. The fire was discovered by Officer John Wimpigler at 4:30 and was, it is believed, caused by defective wiring. The blaze was under control by 6 o'clock.

The rooms of the primary and intermediate departments are wrecked while the senior department was considerably damaged.

The main auditorium of the church which adjoins the Sunday school was not burned, although there is some damage from water and smoke.

Secretary of Agriculture shall give preference to such projects as will expedite the completion of an adequate and connected system of highways, interstate in character." At the same time the importance of local traffic will not be minimized. To care for that class of traffic will always be, in general, the first objective of highway improvement. Wherever possible a choice of highway will be made which, regardless of the order of improvement, will eventually join into a well-conceived network, crossing both county and State boundaries. Thus, while the immediate needs of a State or district may determine priority of construction, each new link will bring nearer the completion of the system as a whole.

Each district engineer of the department is fully informed as to the procedure for interim projects which is so simplified that if important projects are chosen in good faith there will be no delay in obtaining approval for them.

The greatest traffic problems lie in the eastern States, some of which already have a large mileage of improved roads. It will be a comparatively short time, because of new construction and better maintenance, until the transcontinental tourist will be provided with roads that are entirely serviceable throughout the seasons of the year when other conditions favor such traffic.

The Big Road Problem is in Densely Settled Sections.

The really serious traffic problems lie around and between large centers of population. Rapid multiplication in the numbers of automobiles and motor trucks—the number in 1921 being 18 times what it was in 1910—have accentuated the seriousness of the problem. For roads built previous to the advent of the dense motor traffic, alignments, widths, and types were planned for use of the slower, lighter, horse-drawn vehicles. Traffic lines are from town to town and generally follow through the most congested parts of population centers.

CAPTAIN R. J. BOYD

Captain R. J. Boyd, a native of Adams county, died Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home at Upton Franklin county, of uræmic poisoning. If he had lived until January 4, 1922, he would have been 88 years old.

Captain Boyd was born in Adams county on January 4, 1834, a son of John and Catherine Boyd, the former from England and the latter from Ireland. He completed the preparatory courses at Marshall College, Mercersburg, and for a time clerked in merchandise stores at that place. In 1853 he established a business house at Upton, where he lived the remainder of his life. He had been in business at Upton for over 50 years, first for himself and then as a member of the firms of Boyd & Cook and later Cook, Boyd & Frye. He retired from active business pursuits about 15 years ago.

During the Civil War, Captain Boyd enlisted in Co. K. Twenty-first Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and served a month over his period of enlistment, six months. He was chosen to command the company with the rank of captain. At the termination of his enlistment he returned to Upton and engaged in business in the mercantile line. Two years ago Captain Boyd lost his eyesight.

YORK STICKS TO HORSES

Farmers There Do Not Take to Motorized Equipment.

The tractor and the jitney have not pushed the horse into oblivion on York county farms. The Federal census just available credits York county with 15,222 horses. This county is second only to Lancaster and Franklin in the number of horses retained in service on farms. The total value of these animals is $1,719,599.

MANY HERE HAVE NO LICENSE TAGS

State Highway Department Indicates no Leniency For The Late Ones.

A number of people in Gettysburg and throughout the county are included in the 300,000 motor car owners who have not yet received their license tags for 1922.

The state highway department has served notice to the police departments of Pennsylvania cities that sufficient warnings were sent out and enough time allowed for every motorist to obtain his plates for the new year, so that all displaying 1921 tags are liable to arrest and a fine of at most $100.

On Saturday the lineup continued at the doors of the Highway Department, the shivering motorists waiting for hours to get their turns at the window.

Highway Department officials announced that no plans had been made for extension of 1921 automobile licenses and that the law would be enforced. It was pointed out this was the ninth week in which licenses could be obtained. The automobile division was fairly swamped Saturday by mail applications, over 10,000 being received, while long lines of persons, including many messengers from other places were at the offices for counter sales. Not 500,000 applications have been received as yet, while 750,000 may be the total.

TO PUT LIFE IN MONT ALTO PARK

Extensive Program is Announced For Mountain Resort Next Season.

An extensive program of amusements, both inspirational and informative, is outlined for Pine Forest Camp at Mont Alto in the January issue of the "Pine Forest News Letter."

In order to provide adequate facilities for proper presentation of the many features listed many changes will be made at the park. It says:

"In addition to remodeling the present buildings we plan to restore many of the smaller pieces which helped make the old park attractive. There will be also a large swimming pool, an assembly hall and a cottage building program. While the completion of some of these structures must necessarily be deferred, a glance at the program will convince all that the program will not be required to wait."

The program for the 1922 season includes: twelve days of Sunday school workers training conference; six days of Chautauqua program. Five days of Christian Endeavor school of methods; Christian Endeavor reunion (August 17); annual picnic merchants of Waynesboro (August 31); special programs for July 4 and Labor Day; eleven week-ends with special programs of music and lecture; supervised play.

Beginning July 4 there will be a regular park orchestra which will give musical programs each evening during July and August and on certain afternoons. The orchestra is being selected and trained by Glenn Brosius, of Mont Alto, a graduate of Peabody Institute, Baltimore, and a soloist and orchestra violinist and leader.

During Chautauqua weeks Tuesdays and Fridays will be dance evenings, 9 to 11:30. The park orchestra will furnish the music. These dances will be open to Chautauqua patrons only. Mondays and Wednesdays of Chautauqua weeks will be given to after-Chautauqua social and recreational programs under the supervision of the park recreational director. Campfires and fireside program will be carried out for the benefit of our Chautauqua patrons.

CONFIDENT OF RATIFYING TREATY

Irish Public Opinion Has Consolidated in Favor of Pact With England.

Dublin, Jan. 2—Members of the Dail Eireann who have been spending the holidays at their homes are beginning to return to Dublin for the resumption of the sessions of the Dail on Tuesday.

Irish public opinion seemingly has consolidated in favor of the peace treaty with Great Britain during the last week and the supporters of the treaty in the Dail yesterday expressed far more confidence of ratification of the document than at any time since the debate opened.

Their most conservative estimates are for a majority of about twelve and in setting that figure they declare that they leave out of consideration the possibility of a considerable number of the opponents of the treaty abstaining from voting. Estimates of the sentiment of the people throughout the country on the issue vary from 75 to 95 per cent in favor of the treaty.

At a meeting of the Irish Commercial travelers' federation at Mansion House Saturday night, President Holland said with regard to the sentiment of the country on the question, "There is nobody in Ireland who knows the pulse of the people better than the commercial traveler, and therefore, I can state that 95 per cent of the people are in favor of the treaty."

Out of all the local boards throughout the south and west of Ireland which have expressed themselves with regard to the treaty, the bantay board of guardians still stands alone as opposed to its acceptance.

JACKIES IN FIGHT

(By Associated Press)
Shanghai, Jan. 2—Serious trouble between sailors from Italian and American warships developed today when a band of forty Italian sailors surprised and attacked about a dozen jackies in a cafe and then went from one restaurant to another attacking isolated bands of Americans. Five jackies sustained knife wounds, and two were severely stabbed. The trouble was the outgrowth of a trifling brawl in a cafe. All shore liberties from warcraft have been suspended as a result.

One of the wounded Americans, D. J. Rebbe, of the gunboat Wilmington, died later from his injuries.

LOWER FARES TO BIG FARM SHOW

Special Concession Granted by Railroads Taking People to Harrisburg.

Reduced railroad rates from all points in Pennsylvania will be granted to those persons attending the agricultural conventions and educational meetings to be held in connection with the Sixth Annual State Farm Products Show at Harrisburg, January 23-27. The tickets will be good for three days.

In order to secure the reduction in rates it will be necessary for the farmers to secure blanks from their county agents or from the secretary of one of the organizations which meets in conjunction with the show. Full fare will be paid going to Harrisburg and after the ticket has been issued, the return ticket will be sold at half fare.

The fact that more than 35,000 persons attended the farm products show last year and that even a larger number is expected this year lead the railroad companies to grant the concession.

Plans for the show and attendant educational meetings are progressing rapidly. Tons of exhibits have already been shipped to Harrisburg from all sections of the state. These have been placed in cold storage. More than 65,000 square feet of floor space has been secured for the show alone, while every available meeting place in Harrisburg has been leased for the holding of the educational meetings.

SUICIDE BY GAS

Popec, Notified by Neighbor, Find Body Of Man.

Cambridge, Md., Jan. 2—Walter T. Stevens, 55 years old, committed suicide here yesterday by fastening a tube leading from the gas jet into his mouth. He was found by police who were notified by Dr. P. P. Payne. After entrance was gained by breaking the door leading into his print shop, where he slept and worked, the police found him lying on a bed.

Dr. Payne, who lives next door to the print shop, detected the gas fumes when he arose. The dead man was said to have been married twice. The motive for his act is believed to have been despondency over ill health.

CHILDREN'S MANNERS

THE minute a child begins to eat with the assistance of its own small hands, the first lesson in table manners must begin. There is little excuse for the disgusting table manners of some children. They are due, really, to the fact that the mother or other caretaker finds it less trouble to let the child search aimlessly for its small mouth than to insist that it locate it daintily, surely and without experiment.

A very small child can be taught to eat nicely. Teach it that spotted bibs are beneath contempt. Patiently show it how to hold its spoon and cup, and help it to eat slowly. The lesson is a hard one for the teacher as well as for the child. But perseverance is the only way. And once the child has learned to eat daintily, the slovenly ways of untrained children when they are eating will be as distasteful to it as you would find them in a grown person.

Remember that children ape the manners of their elders. For this reason the greatest care should be used in the choosing of nursemaids, governesses or any one else who comes in constant contact with the child. Many well known men have talked, when excited, to their dying day in the brogue or burr of their childhood nurses.

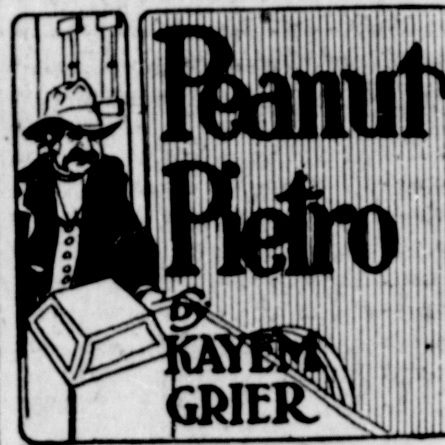

And who can doubt that much of the gentleness of character and strength of spirit of Robert Louis Stevenson were inspired in him by the dear old nurse to whom he dedicated his "Child's Garden of Verse?"

The imitative method is the easiest whereby a child may acquire its manners. The small boy who adores his gallant father seldom forgets to take off his hat and stand in the presence of women. The small girl who looks up to her mother with affection is the pattern of loving courtesy to her father. Children often affect the graces of their elders in a most laughable way. But don't laugh at them. They will outgrow this priggishness. It is only a case of their imitative acquisition of manners.

It is the vogue of the day for small girls, up to the age of ten or twelve, to curtsy when they meet their elders. After that they, like small boys, stand and shake hands. It is also proper for children to be quiet and unobtrusive when they are in the company of grown-ups.

Some of the set rules of children's manners, like these, they cannot learn by imitation. But if they are courteous, thoughtful and happy they will take an interest in acquiring these little superficial manners that will make their acquisition easy.

SCANT WELCOME FOR NEW YEAR

another's glasses. At 11 o'clock the pastor preached a sermon, the title of which was: "While I Was Musing, the Fire Burned". Shortly before 12 o'clock, the congregation knelt in prayer until the town clock struck midnight, after which the meeting closed with the benediction.

At the Trinity Reformed Church, in addition to a watch service, the pastor, Rev. Paul R. Pontius, conducted preparatory services for the Holy Communion administered Sunday. The new year services began at 10:45 with an organ prelude played by Mrs. Carrie Pretz, after which the pastor preached a sermon on the subject "Old Things Made New". Following the sermon, a prayer of grace for the old year was offered and after the clock had struck midnight, a prayer of consecration was offered for the new year.

A similar prayer and watch service was held in the Asbury M. E. Zion church, South Washington street, by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Robinson.

Japan is called "the land of blades" by its own people, some of the older scholars having declared that the first sword was invented by the same god who invented poetry. LANSFORD TRIPS LOCAL QUINTET

Two Day Trip Was Strenuous For Gettysburg High.

Showing the strain of two hard games on successive nights the Gettysburg High School basketball team weakened in the last eight minutes of the game Saturday and lost to Lansford by a 31-19 score.

This was the first trip the locals made away from Gettysburg this year and the first trip of scheduled league games. The outlook is very encouraging however, as they lost to Reading by but one point and to Lansford only after weakening in the closing minutes after having held them tie most of the night.

Gettysburg scored four goals to Lansford's two in the first half but at the end of the period, aided by foul shooting, Lansford succeeded in making it a tie at 11 all. In the second half it was nip and tuck all the way through with neither side getting a material lead until the closing minutes when Kaster and Brokenshire got going and caged a number of goals. The locals were unable to keep up the swift pace for the strenuous game at Reading told on them and the period ended with a final score of 31-19.

ANOTHER VICTORY

Biglerville Tossers Take Game By Decisive Score.

Biglerville won its third consecutive victory of the week Saturday evening when the Upper Countians walloped the Thompson School of Business quintette by a 35 to 13 score. B. H. S. seemed to net them from any angle of the floor and caged fourteen field goals, while Thompson only put four double deckers through the nets.

Eisenhart was the star for Thompson and, while he did not score from the field, his excellent guarding kept the Bigler score down. Knouse, Minter and Oyer led in the scoring from the field, Oyer putting four through in the short time he played in the second half. The score:

THE OLD HOME TOWN BY STANLEY

Small Hats Are Best for Day Wear

For day wear the preference is still for the small hat. They've become colorful dots on the landscape. The Ponch design (below) which smacks of the tricorn, is of black tulle with oriental embroidery and still further enlivened with varicolored semiprecious stones. The two Marie Louise hats venture down giving to the eyes of the wearer fascinating shadows.

POSTPONE FIGHT

Leonard-Mitchell Bout Set Back For One Week.

Milwaukee, Jan. 2—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion boxer will meet Mitchell on Monday night, January 9 in a ten round no decision round instead of this afternoon as originally arranged, the postponement being occasioned by a muscular affection suffered by Mitchell. He wound up his active training Saturday and was reported to be in the pink of condition. The muscular condition attacked him yesterday but nothing was given out in the hope of remedying the trouble. Boxing enthusiasts from the middle and northwestern states had come in large numbers to witness the bout.

GIRLS TO PLAY

Biglerville Quintette Would Like To Meet Others.

Biglerville High School girls would like a game for this week and any quintette in the county and are welcome to try their luck against the upper countians. All communications should be addressed to the principal of the high school.

HAVE THE OLDEST CAKES

Frederick Sends Them to Various Men of Prominence.

Frederick probably holds the record for having the oldest fruit cakes, pieces of which have been sent to the greatest men in this country and Europe. The cakes, the property of Singleton T. Stull, were baked in 1872-73 by the late Mrs. Stull. Only two small pieces remain of the original baking.

A few days ago Mr. Stull sent a piece of one of the cakes to Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State and presiding officer at the Disarmament Conference. About two weeks ago Marshal Foch was sent a piece. Secretary Hughes acknowledged the gift Thursday.

During the past year the following have been sent pieces of the cakes: Dr. A. C. Dixon, acting pastor of the University Baptist Church, Baltimore; former President William Howard Taft, now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England; General Pershing, Thomas A. Edison, Dr. Russell H. Cromwell, Philadelphia; the late Cardinal Gibbons, the Rev. Alonzo D. Winters, pastor of the Second Baptist Church and congregation.

Philadelphia, and the Rev. "Billy" Sunday.

The cake is sent out in the shape of a paper weight. One side of the cake can be seen while on the reverse side is a card containing its history.

SALLY'S SUITORS

By MILDRED WHITE.

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union

Philip leaned back in his chair and looked at Sally. He had been looking at Sally, in just that same wistful, wondering way, for quite a long time.

"Your aunt tells me," Philip began disapprovingly, "that you have a number of admirers, Sally. She calls them 'suits' and she bewails the fact that you show no inclination to marry and settle down. Your Aunt Dorcas appears to doubt your ability to love."

Sally laughed her knees. "She says," went on Philip soundly, "that you have wealth, charm, youth and responsible age to choose from and that you merely flirt with them all."

"Flirt!" Sally's eyes indignantly refuted.

"Look here," she said as she leaned forward, "if one is naturally pleasant to several friends of the male sex whom one could not possibly consider in marriage, is one then a flirt?"

"But, Sally," Philip gently insisted, "your Aunt Dorcas tells me that each of the four has proposed for your hand, in the good old-fashioned way; gone to your father, and your embarrassed father had to refer them each time to you."

"I don't mind confessing," Philip added, "that both your father and aunt have requested me to bring my influence to bear with you on this subject."

Sally giggled. "The poor men were more afraid to ask me than to ask father," she said. "So I don't think that your influence will bear much on the subject, Philip."

"Nevertheless," he persisted, "I shall keep my promise by endeavoring to find at least your preference. First, let's take the moneyed man. Money is supposed to have most weight, isn't it, Sally? Well, how about that fellow's chance?"

"Judge for yourself, discerning friend," she suggested.

"The moneyed suitor has a stare like a glass-eyed doll. His conversation is mostly concerning the suitability of certain neckties or the gowns the real people wore at the last luncheon. He insists upon remaining during an evening call until you have fallen asleep in your chair. And he is so happily occupied by his own reminiscences that he does not hear you snore. Am I acquitted regarding my moneyed admirer?"

Philip laughed. "You are," he agreed. "Now let's consider the man of charm."

Sally shook her head ruefully. "That was a jolt for me," she regretted, "his charm almost carried me away. Until—well, until I began to see how it was carrying others away. Jim is so engaging. He palms off worthless stock upon trusting hypnotized friends, and is distressingly sorry in their later disappointment."

"But about this young admirer," he inquired. "Your Aunt Dorcas insists that he is honest, admirable and devoted. She says—" Philip's gaze was reproachful—"that the boy threatens to shoot himself if you refuse him."

"Either that," Sally cheerfully admitted, "or else he threatens to shoot me. I forget which. But he is violent in his tendencies, and jealous—very jealous. That's going to grow on him. And do you know Philip," Sally's tone was ingeniously questioning, "I really haven't a fancy to be shot up, some evening, when I'd become his dutiful wife, because you or some other old friend happened in to call."

"I should say not," Philip's tone was emphatic. "But what about the reliable elder party, Sally?"

"He?" Sally's pretty brows were upraised. "His daughter taught me in high school," she explained. "Can you picture your poor friend, Philip, dominated as a wife by her husband, and by his daughter as well? That teacher did have some sense with me!" Sally reflected with satisfaction.

Neither despondency nor despair was evidenced in Philip's defeat. "It seems to me," he summed up the case, "that you are justified in your general attitude."

"Thanks," Sally remarked sweetly. "Now, if one could find a sort of composite man," she went on, "endowed with the qualities of each, what a glad old world this might be. A little money, you know, Philip: a little charm, young enough to be a little jealous, old enough to be reliable."

Philip cleared his throat. It seemed difficult to speak. He turned his wistful eyes away from Sally, because her own were so disturbing.

"I," he faltered, "have a little money. I appear still young enough to be jealous. Recently the fact was unpleasantly forced upon me. I could, however, be guaranteed not to shoot; for I have reached the reliable age of discretion, and not being married, Sally, I would have no dominating daughter to help with my wife's discipline; anyway, I would keep her forever, as she is now—the girl that I love, with not one pretty whim or caprice changed. But oh, my dear, I have lost the winning card. Added years bring no charm."

Deliberately Sally arose; deliberately she came around to the wide chair where Philip sat, swinging herself to its arm. Her own arms went tenderly about Philip's neck. The fetching little dimple popped out to enhance the brightness of Sally's left eye.

"Goose!" she remarked. "It was your charm that won my heart three years ago, and has made me ever since immune."

A Solution of the Bath Problem

Recipe for the Saturday Night Bath: Take one tub, fill it with water, flavor with soap. Place in that one child. If child cries, add one pup. Never mind yelp of pup, child will stop crying. Jeanie Mahoney, of New York, wants to bathe twice a day since her mother followed this recipe. And who thought there were still tin bath tubs in New York?

McSHERRYSTOWN

McSherrystown—For the second time in less than a month the fire department was called to the home of John Tawney. The chimney of that home was again on fire and the firemen responded with the truck. The fire was quickly put out and no damage was done.

Cyril Rice, of the U. S. S. "Maryland," now in port in the Brooklyn Navy yards, has arrived here to spend several days at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Rice, Main street.

V. H. Lilly has sold a lot of land improved by a two story brick dwelling, Third and Main streets to Harry J. Wagaman. The terms of the sale were private. This is the property which was offered for public sale some time ago and was withdrawn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hayberger, Gettysburg, spent Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cramer, Main street. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swope and children, Main street, were also entertained there that evening.

About $50 damage was done last week by fire at the L. C. Hoke farm, rear of Oxford road, tenanted by Edward Schuhart. When Mr. Schuhart and his wife were awakened by a roaring in the chimney they went down stairs and found the kitchen in flames. Through his own efforts Mr. Schuhart extinguished the flames and prevented greater loss.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, Polly C. Harman, who departed this life two years ago today, January 2nd, 1920.

What grief and pain she suffered here,
None of us will ever know.
But Jesus took her home with him,
Where no tears will ever flow.

Into sweet rest she has entered,
No more to grieve and weep.
She is smiling upon me from heaven,
My dear mother has fallen asleep.

When you ask me, do I miss her?
Yes it fills my heart with pain.
But her spirit softly whispers,
In heaven we shall meet again.

Time may pass and years may fly,
And every hope will fade and die.
And every peaceful dream may set,
But my darling mother I cannot forget.

By her son, J. W. Harman

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Kenton Brown, who died one year ago today, Jan. 2, 1922.

Weep not that his toils are over,
Weep not that his race is run;
God grant we may rest as calmly
When our work like his is done.

Oh, that dear one how we loved him,
Oh, how hard to give him up;
But an angel came down for him,
And removed him from our flock.

The Poor Inventor

THE originator of an idea has wasted his time unless he is able to interest some one else in his creation—unless that someone else can enjoy it or benefit by it.

It is because thoughts are so freely radiated—so easily exchanged and spread broadcast—that this country is a fine place to live in.

Consider the advertisements in this paper. They are thoughts. Many of them are thoughts conceived with you in mind—thoughts for your comfort—your pleasure—your health—your satisfaction. Thoughts that will save you time and and money.

Don't close your ears to it

LEFT OVERS

Every housewife knows what a problem it is to get rid of a lot of "left-overs" when she has them on hand. Often she just serves them cold or warmed up but the real thrifty wife makes an attractive dish out of the "left-overs" and they are often more pleasing than when served first.

Did it ever strike you how our offering merchandise is like preparing your daily meals? When you first serve food it looks and tastes best because it is fresh and new. Just so with our merchandise, when it first arrives it looks and "tastes" best to the buyers. Then after the season we have "left-overs" just as after each meal you have them, and, like many of you we offer these left overs in an attractive form. We cannot warm up or serve cold any of our left-overs but we make them attractive to you by price reductions and we want you to make a meal of our offerings.

The Season of Left-Overs is Here

Left-Overs

27 inch Plaid Dress Gingham shorts	12½c
36 inch fine brown muslin, extra quality	12½c
Turkish towels, good quality and size	49c pair

BLIND EYES

By DORA MOLLAN.

©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

It often happens with drink. A man who has left intoxicants strictly alone in youth develops a weakness for them late in life. That man comes a harder cropper than one who has early set foot in the bibulous way. So it was with Niles Grey, "the old lover," as they call him now in Pleasant Valley. But it was no craving for strong waters that waited till past his middle years before assailing Niles. It was a longing for romantic love.

The township of Pleasant Valley embraces a lake. One shore of it acts as a boundary for the village of Pleasantville; the other is sweetly wooded in front of a grassy plateau, and on the plateau sits an old brown farmhouse, untenanted for five years at the beginning of this story.

Niles Grey was an unnoticeable man who for many years had kept a small hardware shop in a stunted city and lived in the little room at the rear. He remembered very little about his parents, but an aunt had dined into him the fact that they had died in destitution, having failed to save in easy times. Niles' purpose was that this should not happen to him. So the little shop and the little back room saw Niles' hair turn from dusty brown to dusty gray and his body grow perceptibly less, like a russet apple after a cellared winter, while his bank account grew greater.

Niles' ambition had been to retire at fifty with enough saved to live on comfortably for the rest of his life. Like most men with the aspiration, he overplayed his limit and it took the words of an outdoors preacher, which reached his ears as he stood on the doorstep one evening, to bring sharply to his consciousness that oldest of truths—that man is born to die, and verily his years are three-score years and ten, and if—but Niles knew no reason why the "if" should apply to himself.

So Niles sold out his business and, having always lived in a city, hankered for the country. Thus, in the course of events, shored along a bit by an astute real estate agent, Niles Grey came to live in the old brown farmhouse on the woods-encircled plateau above Lake Pleasant.

Niles had always kept house for himself and he continued to do so.

There was one conclusion at which Niles' thought always arrived—how little he had to think about. The many, many days spent in his little shop had been uneventful enough. The departure of one clerk and the hiring of another alone divided them into periods. Many times he ran over the list—and always he stopped when he came to Miss Lamb. Why had she left? It was not to be married, he knew.

Because Niles had so little to think about he learned to dream. And the eligible single women of the village, looking across the lake and seeing him sitting there in front of his house, pined his lonely life for its emptiness.

Niles wasn't thinking of the single women of the village, but about what his life would have been like if he had married young. And because now it could never be, of course, he began to wish that it might have been. That very evening he walked around to the Pleasantville postoffice to mail a letter. He arrived there just as the mail was being distributed and the village news of the day discussed. They were speaking of Miss Letty, the town's dressmaker for twenty years. The tragedy was that she could be the dressmaker no more. She had cut out the doctor's wife's new summer silk partly on the wrong side—and had broken down and confessed that she could never have discovered it herself. Miss Letty was in terrible distress, for it meant the poor farm. She had no relatives and there was no way for a blind woman to earn a living.

Niles Grey listened. He sat out late that night looking down at the lake. Early next morning Niles again set out for the village. He inquired for the dwelling place of Miss Letty, knowing her by no other name.

A little woman opened the door. He was flustered at knowing only her given name, and by the delicacy of his errand. He stumbled in his rehearsed introduction so much that, while he did notice her pale blue eyes were red as from recent weeping, he did not realize that a singular agitation had come upon her at the sound of his voice.

Miss Letty strove for the tone of polite friendliness. "Won't you come in, Mr. Grey?" she said. "How have you been all these years since I left your employ?" But her voice trembled as she led the way to a chair; and she forgot, in her confusion, that no longer was she a good judge of distances. She tripped over the chair.

Niles caught Miss Letty as she was falling—and held her. As her slight figure leaned against him for support and he saw the quivering of her thin lips, Niles knew many things. In an instant, like a drowning man, he knew this woman was Miss Lamb—and why she had left his employ. He knew that she had cared for him through all the years and still cared. He knew that he would lie to her and tell her that he had always cared too—until he came to believe it himself. And he knew that there would be no more dreaming of love, for the time would be only too short for the living of it.

"Provocation" is Good.
In an examination a schoolboy gave this definition: "Holy matrimony is a divine institution for the provocation of mankind."
